

Fire Suppression Installation Technician

Overview

We are looking for lead fire suppression system installers with little to no previous experience. We are a fast-growing company if you are searching for a career that will provide the training to learn a trade and gain the certifications and experience needed to be one of the tops in this field. We are focused on integrity, excellence, and service for our customers where we try to provide a product and service that leaves our customers feeling safe and reassured that their business is covered in the worst-case scenario.

This position is a physical trade position that requires a longer training period that will mostly involve riding along with senior technicians to learn the intricacies of the trade. Certifications and training are paid for by the company, but passing is a requirement to continue along in the position. Once trained, a technician typically works alone to complete installs with occasional team ups with other technicians on bigger jobs.
